The Flux Congress has seen steady growth in attendance over the years, with notable peaks in 2019 (New York) and 2024 (Baltimore). While the 2020 and 2021 virtual meetings showed strong numbers despite the global pandemic, these years are considered anomalies due to the shift to virtual formats during COVID-19. The return to in-person events has reinvigorated participation, as evidenced by the increasing numbers for 2022 (Paris) and 2023 (Santa Rosa). This continued growth highlights the expanding reach of the Flux Congress and offers greater visibility within an engaged and growing audience.

The Flux Congress has demonstrated a dynamic shift in its attendee profile during European-hosted years. Notably, in 2022 (Paris) and 2018 (Berlin), Flux Society saw a significant increase in international participation, with over 50% of attendees coming from outside the U.S. Similarly, 2015 (Leiden) showcased a strong global presence, with more than 40% non-U.S. attendees. These European events clearly draw a more internationally diverse audience, offering a unique chance to engage with a broader, more global participant base, expanding well beyond U.S. borders.
